Dumplings For the Unpaid In Beijing

January 6, 2006

Hoping that a simple meal will alleviate the plight of migrant workers, the All-China Federation of Trade Unions and Beijing's local trade unions have promised to provide jiaozi dumpling dinners to Beijing's migrant workers during the upcoming Spring Festival holiday.

In particular, those migrant laborers who are battling to receive unpaid wages will be fed first.

The jiaozi dinner was announced during a press conference this week to announce support for China's 130 million migrant workers.

Chinese Employee Wins UPS Global Community Service Award

UPS driver Andy He Jinchang of Guangzhou, has earned the company's top global community service award from CEO Scott Davis, the first time a non-U.S. employee has ever been so honored. Jinchang was recognized for his personal outreach efforts to rural communities in Guangdong Province where he is helping school children, mentally-challenged children and the elderly.
